DR. E. T. CHIPP'S Oratorio Job the Words selected from the Old Testament, composed by Dr. E. T. Chipp. Pianoforte Score, by the Author, 4s. net.

DR. E. T. CHIPP, Music for the Church Service and Home Circle, containing 10 Sentences, 24 single and 41 double Chants, 4 Te Deum Laudamus, Jubilate Deo, 2 Benedictus, 1 Te Deum Laudamus, in unison, 2 Sanctuses, 12 Kyrie Eleison, 4 Gloria, 2 Magnificat, Nunc Dimittis, 4 Cantate Domino, Deus Misereatur, and 108 Church Melodies in short, common, long, and irregular measures, by various authors. Net 4s.

"Dr. Chipp has brought to bear on this book some taste, experience, and research, in the collecting and arranging department, and that skill for which he is accredited, as a composer. The success, therefore, which may attend the work must in no small degree be attributable to its talented editor."—The Queen.

"Mr. Chipp's is decidedly the completest collection of useful Church Choral Music we have yet seen. It, as Mr. Chipp in his preface states, fully embraces all the requirements of a parochial choir. Music has of late made such rapid strides, that very few of the congregations of our parish churches, either in town or country, are now satisfied with a simple chant for our beautiful Te Deum, Kyrie, &c.; and it is a great boon to the (in many cases) hard-worked organist to have such a collection to refer to, combining as it does so many works of well-known beauty with others, either original compositions or arrangements of celebrated composers. Amongst the latter we may especially notice a very beautiful Sanctus by Spohr. It is arranged in two different forms: in No. 83 we have it with a solo for soprano or tenor voice, and harmonized in the repetition for the full choir; in No. 84 the organ has the harmonies, and the voices simply join in unison. We think the first most effective; but, of course, the second is the easier of the two. The collection comprises four Te Deums, two Jubilates, and one Benedictus by Mr. Chipp. Of these we like No. 78, a Te Deum in C, harmonized for full choir, the best; No. 79, a Jubilate, in the same key, is also effective; No. 82, a Te Deum in D, with the voices in unison, is very good. Unison passages always carry with them a certain grandeur of effect, which is, of course, particularly desirable in that great outburst of praise and belief, our Te Deum. All of Mr. Chipp's compositions are praiseworthy. There is, also, a great number of chants and Church melodies in common, long, and irregular measure, some of them well-known, and others arranged in their present form for the first time. Mr. Chipp may congratulate himself on having compiled a most useful work; and we can safely recommend it to the notice of the 'home circle,' as well as organists and members of choirs. We are sure that a more intimate acquaintance with some of our Church music, hymn tunes, &c., would enable our congregations to join with greater ease and accuracy in singing the praises of our Lord, and in many ways tend to raise the character of the musical portion of our public devotions. In many of our Churches the choir alone sing; any one of the congregation attempting to join is looked upon with astonishment. This can hardly be right, as, instead of taking part in the praise of our Redeemer, we are listening to the performance of a professional choir, which, in many instances—not all, of course—would not be the case did we know the music to which the words were set. Looking at it in this point of view, such works as Mr. Chipp's are most useful; and we desire to give him every encouragement in his undertaking."—Church and State Review.

THE SOUL'S ASPIRATION, for Solo and Chorus, with Orchestra or Pianoforte. By J. O. GRIMM, Op. 12. The English Version by JOHN OXENFORD. Net, 2s. Chorus Parts, each 6d.

"The three numbers comprised in this short Cantata, written for solo, quartett, and chorus, with orchestra or pianoforte, are healthy, sound music, and they possess also the great merit of clearness both in design and in treatment. Choral societies might do much worse when in want of a change than turn their attention to 'The Soul's Aspiration.' The English version of the words is by Mr. John Oxenford, whose very name alone implies tact, skill, and taste, and whose performance is, as usual, irreproachable. The work is beautifully brought out in octavo, and the cost is very moderate."—The Queen.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"Perfect music, graceful, winning, and as tuneful as it is unaffectedly expressive. The success is as legitimate as it is indisputable."—Times.

"This is some of the gayest, most dramatic, most entertaining music we have heard for a long time."—Dispatch.

"It is impossible to enumerate the many beauties of this operetta."—Musical Times.

"Fresh, pretty, and harmonious, this work will give greater pleasure than many a grand opera."—Punch.

"The music is admirable throughout."—Standard.

"This operetta will gratify the most refined taste, and may be agreeably represented even by a party of four amateurs in a drawing-room."—Daily News.
